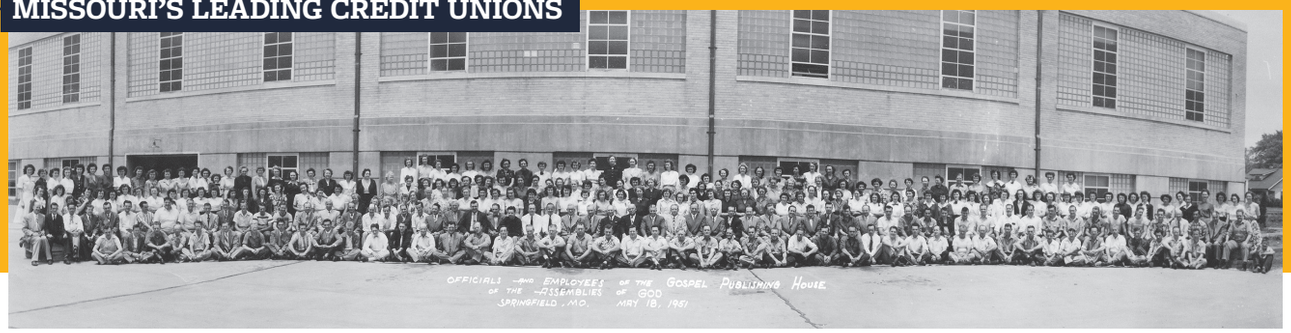
AS SEEN IN
Forbes & Fortune

MISSOURI'S LEADING CREDIT UNIONS



Serving With Purpose

For 75 years, Assemblies of God Credit Union has provided faith-centered financial services that help members, ministries, and missionaries fulfill their calling.

As the financial services industry continues to evolve, some institutions distinguish themselves not only through financial strength, but through a clear sense of purpose. Assemblies of God Credit Union (AGCU), headquartered in Springfield, Missouri, exemplifies both. "Our mission is to help our members connect their faith and their values with their finances," says Peter Shiner, president and CEO. "We exist to be a strong, dependable, and effective resource in supporting the financial health of those at the forefront of delivering the Gospel and fulfilling the Great Commission."

Founded in 1951, AGCU was established to serve those connected to the Assemblies of God Fellowship. Today, the credit union remains committed to that mission while providing modern financial services to members across all 50 states. What began as a small, ministry-focused financial cooperative has grown into a nationally recognized institution with approximately $450 million in assets and more than 18,000 members.

AGCU's mission-driven approach influences everything from consumer banking and mortgages to commercial lending and church treasury management services. As a member-owned, not-for-profit financial cooperative, AGCU returns its earnings to members through better deposit and loan rates, lower fees, and expanded services. "We're committed to providing the same level of innovation, security, and convenience that members expect from the nation's leading financial institutions, while never losing sight of our mission," says Shiner. "Our focus is on equipping members with modern banking solutions backed by exceptional service and trusted relationships."

Unlike other community credit unions that serve a specific region, AGCU operates as a "fellowship financial institution," supporting the financial health and stewardship of individuals, ministries, churches, schools, missionaries, and organizations engaged in advancing the Gospel. This unique focus continues to shape every aspect of the credit union's strategy and member experience.

Peter Shiner, President and CEO

Looking ahead, the credit union continues to invest heavily in technology, cybersecurity, fraud prevention, and digital banking capabilities to ensure members receive secure, convenient, and best-in-class financial services. These investments are designed to strengthen member experience while protecting the financial well-being of members who depend on AGCU every day.

"Whether serving a missionary overseas, a local family purchasing a home, or a ministry managing significant resources, our goal is the same," says Shiner. "We want our members to have complete confidence that their finances are secure, protected, and positioned to support the work they have been called to do."

Faith in Action

The same values that guide AGCU's financial services also shape its charitable giving. The credit union supports a variety of charitable causes, from fighting hunger through donations to local food banks to providing global disaster relief through Convoy of Hope.

"We try to maximize the impact of the dollars we give," says Shiner. "Over the last 15 years, we've tithed about $2.5 million, representing 10% of our revenue. This reflects the values of our membership. As you can imagine, a heart of gratitude and generosity is a defining characteristic of our membership."

AGCU

866-508-2428 | agcu.org

Membership eligibility, terms, and conditions apply. See agcu.org for more information.

Your savings federally insured to at least $250,000 and backed by the full faith and credit of the United States Government

NCUA

National Credit Union Administration, a U.S. Government Agency

EQUAL HOUSING OPPORTUNITY